

MILLENNAIM

Pilot

Written by

Joshua Dietzenbach

EXT. STREETS OF WASHINGTON D.C. - NIGHT

CHAOS. SCREAMING. GUNFIRE.

A squad of Androids march orderly down the streets of Washington D.C. towards the capitol building. Soldiers are firing continuously into the androids. Androids fire back, singularly and precisely, taking out each soldier, never hitting civilians. Androids continue marching toward the capitol.

INT. SITUATION ROOM - NIGHT

Many high ranking government and military officials are talking frantically over each other. Papers are spread frantically across the table. Every screen displays something different and urgent. It's evident that the technology in the room is from the near future.

SECURITY ADVISOR

Sir, they've taken the capitol.

PRESIDENT WILKENS (M, 60), an honest looking man but clearly aged by the demands of presidency, sits in a chair at the head of the table. He is clearly in distress.

PRESIDENT WILKENS

Put every last line of defense between us and the capitol. We can not let them in.

SECURITY ADVISOR

Yes sir.

The national security advisor starts frantically talking to other officials. They start barking orders through high tech radios.

A large boom shakes the room. The lights flicker.

The SECRETARY OF DEFENSE rushes up to the president and whispers something in his ear.

PRESIDENT WILKENS

Dear God...

President Wilkens sits, thinking for a beat.

PRESIDENT WILKENS (CONT'D)

Drop the bombs.

SECRETARY OF DEFENSE

You can't possibly, not with...

PRESIDENT WILKENS
(Angrily)
Drop them.

The Secretary of Defense pushes a panel in the wall. A futuristic computer pops out. He types urgently.

Suddenly, all the screens shut off. A hush falls over the room. Everyone stands still, as if anticipating something.

The room goes dark. We hear a crash, like a wall or door is broken in. Yelling and screaming ensues. Gunfire starts to rain out, yet nothing is seen. The sound fades out.

BLACK SCREEN

No sound. MILLENNAIM is displayed static center screen.

INT. APARTMENT BUILDING - MORNING

Sunbeams stream through a window. We PAN across an apartment bedroom. It is a mid-20s women's apartment bedroom; however, it has an almost sterile feel about it and is organized. A soft beeping grows louder until the camera stops on ELLIE (F, 25), tucked under the covers, alarm clock beeping next to her.

Ellie yawns and shuts off the alarm clock. She gets out of bed and goes about her morning routine. Shower. Hair. Brush Teeth. Makeup. Everything is extremely standard, nothing is over the top.

Ellie eats breakfast. There is a flat screen that is mounted into the wall where we see President Wilkens, but without the stressed aging that we saw in the first scene. He is giving an address. While his words are muffled to the viewer, he looks happy. Ellie ignores this entire address. The entire apartment is also clean and organized.

Ellie grabs her bag off of a hook by the door and walks out the door into the hallway and gets in an elevator. The elevator is also futuristic, but has the standard button layout. She walks out of the lobby.

EXT. CITY - CONTINUOUS

We open into a near future utopian city. Trees and flowers are abundant, but are neatly organized, never going onto the pathway. Buildings are a sterile white, with lots of glass. There are no streets or honking cars, just walkways.

There are no giant screens or excessive advertising, everything seems to fit into place.

We follow Ellie through the city. People are working various jobs, all with joyous looks on their faces. While every person is dressed individually, no one stands out. We see that no one is on a smartphone or has headphones in.

Ellie goes down stairs resembling a subway entrance. She walks up to a platform, however no paid gates can be seen. A bullet train pulls up to the station. She enters on to the train, the doors close, and the train takes off rapidly.

INT. OFFICE BUILDING - MORNING

Ellie walks into an office building. At a reception desk sits MRS. BERGAMOND (F, 60), a very sweet looking lady. The desk is extremely nice and orderly.

MRS. BERGAMOND
(Happily)
Good morning Ellie.

ELLIE
(Happily)
Good morning Mrs. Bergamond.

Ellie walks into the elevator. A second later walks in VALERIE (F, 27). She is wearing a similar outfit, yet there is a bit of an edge about her.

VALERIE
Hey El, how was your weekend?

ELLIE
Oh, you know, the usual.

VALERIE
Spending all day reading?

ELLIE
How couldn't I? Not when a new Jade Maretta book just released.

VALERIE
(Playfully)
You need to come out with me sometime and meet someone, not just some hunk in your book.

They both exit the elevator and walk into a large room. It resembles a posh office, however, there is a lack of computers. Everyone is busy talking, having joyful looks on their faces.

Ellie takes a seat at one of the tables. Valerie takes a seat next to her. Many other workers make their way to the various tables around the room. Some go into various conference rooms. As the clock strikes 9:00, out of a room walks MR. BREKMAN (M, 50), a rounded mustached man in a suit. The room goes silent.

MR. BREKMAN

Ahh, another lovely day to start the week. Let's get started, shall we?

Mr. Brekman starts walking around the room, putting what seems to look like an index card in a slot in each table. After each index card is put in, a screen pops out of the middle of the table.

MR. BREKMAN (CONT'D)

Today, we have been contracted by a large food company to design for their new flavor of chips. Each of you will be instructed on your screens about what your task is today.

On the screen pops up instructions. At the top it reads LOGO DESIGN. The other tables get different instructions.

ELLIE

(Under breath)

Yes

Out of the table pops a drawing screen. Everyone at the table immediately starts drawing. There isn't a methodical approach or research similar to normal logo creation. It seems to be a race to whoever can get the most amount of different designs done.

On the center screen displays a graph showing who is getting the most designs done. A timelapse of the screen ensues. As time passes, we see Ellie's graph out pace the rest of her table members as time goes on. At the bottom we see Valerie's graph.

INT. BREAK ROOM - AFTERNOON

Ellie and Valerie are sitting at a table eating their lunch. Up walks DEMETRIUS (M, 28), who sits down at the same table and takes out his lunch. Ellie and Valerie are mid-conversation happily talking.

VALERIE

Man, I don't get how you can get so many design done El. Every time we get logo design, I get stuck on intricately designing every single detail.

ELLIE

I guess it's just what I'm good at.
(To Demetrius)
What did you have today Demetrius?

DEMETRIUS

I had slogan.

VALERIE

(Sarcastically)
What did you write? Please tell me it's not like when you wrote the slogan for that new vacuum cleaner.

DEMETRIUS

(Laughing)
Oh, you are never going to let me live that down are you.

The characters sit silently eating for a beat.

VALERIE

I just saw that they opened a new bar near the violet district. Why don't you come check it out tonight El?

ELLIE

Oh... I don't know...

VALERIE

Come on, it'll be fun.
(Slight Pause)
Demetrius is coming.

DEMETRIUS

(Taken aback)
I am?

VALERIE
(To Ellie)
Come on, at least once for me?

Valerie bats her eyes as if trying to entice her, hands clasped in a begging motion. Ellie thinks for a beat. She frowns for a second, but then returns to smiling immediately.

ELLIE
Sure!

VALERIE
(Pumping her arm in excitement)
Yesssss

INT. OFFICE BUILDING - LATE AFTERNOON

We see Valerie and Ellie hard at work once again. Ellie is extremely focused, while Valerie seems to be struggling, constantly drawing things, then erasing them, then drawing something else. Ellie pushes a button next to the drawing screen, and the image that was on the screen wooshes off, as if being taken away. Ellie goes to start another drawing, but a jingle goes off. Everyone in the room immediately stops working. The clock reads 5:00.

VALERIE
(Under her breath)
Rats, I really thought I could have gotten that done in time.

Mr. Brekmen walks out of his office once again.

MR. BREKMAN
Good work once again today. We are close to hitting our monthly record output, and I hope to see that accomplished by the end of this week. See you bright and early tomorrow!

Ellie and Valerie start packing up their stuff into their bags. They start to walk towards the door with the rest of the crowd. As they are walking, Valerie is gently grabbed on the shoulder by Mr. Brekman.

MR. BREKMAN (CONT'D)
Valerie, can I see you in my office for a minute?

VALERIE
(Confused)
Uh, sure.
(To Ellie)
Don't wait for me. I'll give you a ring when I get home.

Valerie and Mr. Brekman head towards his office. Ellie looks back for a second before turning and walking out the door.

EXT. CITY - CONTINUOUS

Ellie walks in the city street. She approaches her apartment building, the apartment number in yellow. She walks straight through the door, no key card needed. She heads up to her apartment and goes straight in without needing a key.

She puts her bag back on the hook in which she grabbed from earlier. She proceeds to sit down on a couch and pulls out a book. The book looks very generic. Before she can sit down, we hear a loud ringing noise. Ellie lets out a sigh, and gets out of her seat. She goes over and clicks a button on the counter of her kitchen, which reveals a screen similar to the office. On the screen pops up Valerie.

VALERIE Heyyyyyyyyy. So are you getting ready or what? What are you thinking of wearing?

ELLIE
Oh, I don't know. I don't have many options.

VALERIE
Well, let me take a look at the options.

ELLIE
Oh, they are in my room.

VALERIE
Girl, I know. Just bring them over here.

Ellie goes into her bedroom. She opens her closet. Inside there are many outfits, but there is a lack of variety in both color and style. She picks out a few outfits and carries them back into the main room. She drapes some over the couch, and carries up one to the screen.

ELLIE
What about this one?

VALERIE

Maybe.... if you were going for a tea party in a meadow.

Ellie puts down the outfit she was holding up. She then grabs another outfit.

ELLIE

Well, okay then. How about this one?

VALERIE

Definitely better, but too librariany.

Ellie puts down that outfit and picks up the last one.

ELLIE

How about this one? This is my last outfit.

VALERIE

Now that is something we can work with. Put that on, and surprise me tonight.

Valerie looks off screen, as if suddenly distracted by something or someone. Her joyful demeanor is toned down.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

Well, I have to go now. I have to get ready, and do... uhh you know... other stuff.

Valerie hangs up the call. The screen goes back into the countertop, like it had never existed before.

Ellie lets out a sigh. She goes about getting ready once again. Yet, there is a sense of loneliness to the whole process. There are no pictures of family, no animals, nothing to really come home to. It doesn't seem to bother her much, but it is evident.

She puts on very light makeup once again, almost as if she doesn't have much else of an option.

She sits down on the couch and picks up her book before the television screen automatically pops on. The screen automatically pops into a presentation. Ellie doesn't react as if this is a normal occurrence. She proceeds to read her book.

PRESIDENT WILKENS

(on Television)

Hello people of the nation. We have no important news to deliver on this day. We continue to be the example of a great nation of peace, unity, and happiness. Remember, together, we are united, divided, we fall.

The screen shuts off. President Wilkens was extremely emotionless the entire time, something uncanny about him. Why would the president have an address for nothing? Yet, this uncanniness is never acknowledged.

Ellie looks at the clock, it reads 6:30. She get up out of the couch, setting down the book. She exits out the door.

EXT. CITY STREET - DUSK

Ellie walks down the lit city street. She doesn't have much confidence about her. The street is busy, but not overcrowded. People are walking and talking and entering various building. Nobody is hanging around outside. She comes up to a building labeled MYSTIQUE BAR. She looks around before going through the door.

INT. MYSTIQUE BAR - CONTINUOUS

The inside is packed. People are all laughing and talking amongst each other. There is a neon glow in the bar, but has that same sterile feel. It is a bit brighter than a typical bar environment. People are all wearing more dressy outfits, but yet again, there is a very uniform feel about it. There are various glasses in people's hands and on tables, yet they are filled with different colorful liquids instead of beer or liquor. There is a stage, where it looks like people are setting up for a band.

Valerie is seen sitting on a stool at the opposite end of the bar. She spots Ellie from across the room.

VALERIE

Hey! Over here!

Valerie gestures for Ellie to come over. Ellie squeezes her way through the crowd.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

Glad you made it, I was beginning to worry that you would flake on us.

ELLIE

No, I said I would come. I can't lie to a friend.

Demetrius emerges from the crowd holding two drinks in hand.
One is a bright blue color, while the other is a deep red.

Valerie grabs the blue drink out of Demetrius' hand.

VALERIE

Oh El, you need to try this one.

Ellie looks hesitantly at the drink in her hand. Bubbles rise to the service, her face reflecting back to her.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

Don't tell me you've never had a concoction before?

Ellie tilts her head.

ELLIE

I think so? But I can't remember when...

Ellie trails off in thought. There is some memory there, but something about it is different. Suddenly, she snaps back to the conversation, as if she hadn't missed a beat.

VALERIE

Trust me, you'll be fine. It might be weird the first time, but you won't regret it.

Ellie let's out a deep sigh and takes a sip of the blue drink. She instantly feels a warm sensation in her body, and a smile spreads across her face.

ELLIE

You are right... this does taste good!

Demetrius takes a sip of the red drink he was holding.
Valerie picks up another glass with a purple liquid, already half drunk, that was sitting on the table and takes a swig of it.

VALERIE

So, you going to go meet anyone new? Maybe find someone you are interested in?

ELLIE

Let's not get too ahead of ourselves.

DEMETRIUS

I heard they have a live jazz band tonight. I think they are called Smooth Purple or something like that.

VALERIE

(Sarcastically)

Smooth purple? What kind of name is that?

DEMETRIUS

Hopefully, a name that plays good music.

The crowd noise gradually becomes quieter. Ellie, Valerie, and Demetrius turn their heads towards the stage. 5 jazz band members walk on stage, taking their places by various instruments. One member goes up to a microphone at the center of the stage.

BAND MEMBER

Thank you all for coming out. We are Satin Lavender, and we hope you have a lovely time as we play our music for your enjoyment.

The crowd gives a polite applause. The drummer counts in and the band starts playing. The crowd resumes conversation. The jazz music is very generic sounding, nothing to write home about.

VALERIE

(To Demetrius)

So, it's Satin Lavender, not Smooth Purple.

DEMETRIUS

Eh, close enough.

They go back to sipping their drinks. The music continues. We jump between different shots of people around the room, the music the only thing we hear.

A couple talking close to each other. A group of girls laughing hysterically. A group of guys laid back against a counter, pointing something in the distance. Different band members playing their instrument. Between each different shot, we cut back to Ellie, drinking more. The room seems to get more colorful and a bit dimmer with every sip she takes.

A MYSTERIOUS MAN (Zee) (M, 38), walks in. This guy is not like the other people at the bar. He is dressed a bit differently, a little more dark and closed off. While he still has a happy face on, it doesn't seem genuine. He glances around, before making his way to the bar and talks to the bartender.

We pan to Ellie, who is intrigued by this man.

ELLIE

Hey, can you hold this? I'll be right back.

Ellie hands Valerie her drink.

VALERIE

You finally find someone that caught your eye?

Ellie ignores her and walks towards the mysterious man. She squeezes through the crowd of happily talking people. She taps on the man's shoulder.

ELLIE

Hey, I saw you from across the room and wanted to say hi. My name is Ellie.

MYSTERIOUS MAN (ZEE)

Hey, the name's Zee.

Zee shakes Ellie's hand. The bartender sets down an almost pitch black drink next to him. Zee takes an unidentified packet out of his pocket, rips it, and pours it in his drink. He stirs around the drink before taking a sip.

ZEE (CONT'D)

You from the violet district?

ELLIE

Nah, from the yellow. My friends and I just wanted to check out the new place.

ZEE

Those two over there?

Zee points toward Valerie and Demetrius, both who are laughing about something.

ELLIE

Ya! Wait, how'd you know?

ZEE
(Shrugs)
Lucky guess.

ELLIE
How about you? You from violet?

ZEE
I just got moved here, used to be up in the red district, but...
uhh... my job changed.

ELLIE
You don't hear of that too often.

ZEE
Ya, it's not that uncommon for what I do.

Zee takes a big drink from his glass. He twitches for a split second.

ZEE (CONT'D)
I actually have to meet up with someone in a bit, but it was nice meeting you.

Zee proceeds to take out a business card and hands it to Ellie. Ellie puts it in her pocket without looking at it, more preoccupied with staring at Zee. Zee nods his head and walks towards a back door, opens it, and walks through, the door closing behind him. Ellie looks at the door confused for a couple of seconds before walking back to Valerie and Demetrius.

VALERIE
So... how'd it go?

ELLIE
Good... I think?

VALERIE
You think? What do you mean by
that?

Ellie pulls out the business card. She holds it out and looks at it. On it it reads: ZEE (new line) If You Need Me: #301. Valerie and Demetrius read over her shoulder.

VALERIE (CONT'D)
Number 301? Is that even a valid phone number?

DEMETRIUS
Could be a house or apartment number.

ELLIE
Well, that's strange.

VALERIE
At least you talked to someone,
even if it is some weirdo.

Valerie hands back Ellie's drink. Ellie slides the business card back into her pocket and takes another sip of it.

We move back onto the jazz band. The jazz music rises back up again. It's a different song this time, a bit quicker and more upbeat, but still just as generic.

Demetrius starts swaying around to the song. His dancing is awkward and stiff. Valerie laughs.

VALERIE (CONT'D)
(Chuckling)
Who taught you how to dance?

DEMETRIUS
Like you're any better.

Valerie shows off her dance moves. They also aren't the greatest.

DEMETRIUS (CONT'D)
Uh huh, as I thought.

Valerie drags Demetrius towards her. They both have an impromptu awkward dance off. They go back and forth, not paying attention to people around them, but no one seems bothered, the most they get are some glances and people chuckling to each other. Ellie watches them, laughing.

ELLIE
Oh man, I wish I had some way to record this.

The song starts coming to an end. Valerie almost trips into a table but Demetrius grabs her hand. In the most smooth way he did all night, he twirls her close, faces almost touching. Almost immediately, both push each other away and look away from each other. The music comes to a close.

ELLIE (CONT'D)
(Clapping)
Bravo! Bravo!

DEMETRIUS
(Taking a bow)
Why thank you.

Valerie playfully slaps him on the arm.

VALERIE
I don't think she was talking to you.

ELLIE
What makes you think that? I think both were very good.

We hear the sound of tapping on the microphone. Everyone turns their head to the stage.

BAND MEMBER
Thank you all for coming out. We've been Satin Lavender, and we'd like to give you one last song before you go.

The band member looks back to his band members, and they start playing. It is a smooth, calming jazz song. This one doesn't feel as generic, it almost feels more real.

Valerie and Demetrius look at each other for a second, as if lost in thought. Valerie snaps her eyes away and looks up at the clock. It reads 11:20.

DEMETRIUS
We better head out, we have to get back across town before the curfew.
And we do NOT want to face that penalty. I've already spent enough money here.

VALERIE
That's probably a good idea.

Valerie grabs her purse that was sitting at the table.
Valerie, Demetrius, and Ellie move through the crowd, some people also heading out the door. They exit out the front door.

EXT. CITY STREET - NIGHT

Ellie, Valerie, and Demetrius walk out the front door of Mystique Bar. They walk along the street, which is darker and less crowded than before, but still well lit.

VALERIE

Man, I wish we could do this every night.

ELLIE

Wouldn't you get sick of it?

VALERIE

Nah, not at all. I want to explore. Go places. Spend time with people.

DEMETRIUS

Haven't you already been to all the districts?

VALERIE

Ya, but not every corner.

They approach the subway entrance. They stop in front of it.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

Why don't we take a different route tonight?

DEMETRIUS

We probably shouldn't do that now, we are already cutting it close.

Valerie grabs his arms, dragging him towards a side road.

VALERIE

You always worry. And besides, you always plan to be 15 minutes early.
(Beckons towards Ellie)
Ellie come on!

Ellie looks hesitantly at the subway entrance before deciding to follow the pair.

They go down this side road. It transitions from shops and businesses to a bunch of copy and paste houses, all labeled with red numbers. The street is quiet and void of people.

ELLIE

How do you know the way back?

VALERIE

Well, sometimes I like to take the subway at night to a random part of the city and just walk a new way back.

ELLIE

And you've never been past curfew?

VALERIE

Nah, I always seem to make it back just in time. Even though I have had to pick up the pace a few times.

ELLIE

It's so much different at night.
It's almost peaceful.

VALERIE

Ya, it really slows everything down. Everything seems to always move so fast. Work always making us pump out more ideas, more phrases, more designs. The subway moving at top speeds and only 10 seconds to get on.

(beat)

It feels like I'm constantly sprinting and my heart just keeps beating faster and faster.

(beat)

Never mind, I don't know if that makes sense at all.

ELLIE

No, I get it. I feel like reading does that same for me.

They round a corner and the numbers on the buildings change from red to orange. The buildings transition from houses to towering skyscrapers.

We see a few more people, most of them clearly in a hurry. They walk past the office building they work in.

DEMETRIUS

Man, it's weird to be here at night. It feels like I'm going back to work, but it's completely dark out.

VALERIE

You always seem to have work on your mind. Loosen up.

DEMETRIUS

How can I not when the big review is on Friday.

ELLIE

You just had to remind us.

DEMETRIUS

I have a promotion on the line, how can I not?

VALERIE

Mr. Bigshot is climbing the corporate ladder, leaving little ol' Val and El behind.

Valerie grabs onto Demetrius's arm, mocking being left behind.

DEMETRIUS

I would literally be in the same office on the same floor, it wouldn't even be that much of a difference.

Valerie dramatically falls to the ground, acting out a falling motion. Demetrius reaches out his hand to bring her back up.

DEMETRIUS (CONT'D)

Come on, we still have to get back by 12.

As Demetrius helps Valerie up, a soft but audible pained yell can be heard.

ELLIE

What was that?

Valerie gets back on her feet, a look of concern as well. The yell happens again, this time a bit louder.

VALERIE

I think it's coming from over there.

She points into an alley between two buildings. She starts to jog towards the noise.

DEMETRIUS

(Sternly)

Oh no. We should not go towards a random noise this late at night.

VALERIE

What if someone needs help? We can't just stand around.

Valerie runs towards the noise, disappearing around the corner. Ellie jogs after her. Demetrius shakes his head before heading after them.

EXT. ALLEYWAY - CONTINUOUS

Valerie, Demetrius, and Ellie round the corner into the alleyway. They stop abruptly. The camera pans to what they are looking at, a Distressed Man (M, 35), writhing on the ground, both hands tightly pressing into the side of his head. He is dressed in a very similar attire to Zee, but just as unique. He lets out a few groans.

ELLIE

Are you... alright?

The man doesn't respond. He continues writhing on the ground, letting out a scream of agony. Ellie and Valerie look at each other, then start to inch closer. They have clearly never seen anything like this before, and they move as if they are more curious than concerned. As they get closer, they realize that his left hand is covered in blood. On the ground is a sharp object, with blood on the tip of it. Ellie and Valerie stop once they notice this.

VALERIE

Do you need help? Do you need a doctor?

The man continues to not respond. He grabs the sharp object on the ground and starts to bring it towards his head.

Ellie jumps into action and bats the object out of his hand across the ground. She winces as it grazes her hand, giving her a cut. Tears start to well up in her eye, but then her head starts to feel weird, as if her emotions are fighting a battle within her brain. She puts her non cut hand up to her forehead, pinching the sides of her head. She collapses onto the ground, ZEE'S CARD falling out of her pocket and fluttering towards the Distressed Man.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

(running up to Ellie)

Are you okay???

Valerie grabs Ellie before she can collapse. Ellie stays upright, her head gradually starting to feel better. The cut, despite its bleeding, doesn't hurt that bad, it feels like a light numbness.

ELLIE

Ya, I think I'm good.

They both turn their attention to the Distressed Man. He is sobbing now, more blood dripping out of the side of his head. He spots the card on the ground, before looking up at them.

DISTRESSED MAN
(weakly)
You... you... know Zee?

Ellie hesitates. She doesn't want to talk to the man, but is intrigued by his possible connection to Zee.

ELLIE
Not really. I just talked to him at the bar for a minute.

DISTRESSED MAN
(Disappointed)
Oh.

VALERIE
Is there someone we can get to help?
(To Demetrius at the end of the alley)
Hey Demetrius, try to get some help!

DEMETRIUS
(Yelling back)
Uh... ok!

Demetrius takes off around the corner, going to look for help. As if perfectly on queue, at the other end of the alley 2 Figures appear. They are wearing what looks to be a white stiff hazmat suit, with their faces completely unseeable due to a reflective mask.

ELLIE
Hey, can you help us out?

The 2 figures continue walking towards them, almost in an army like march. They do not say anything.

DISTRESSED MAN
Shit.

The Distressed Man tries to get up, clearly struggling, blood still coming out of the side of his head. He is unable to get up fully.

ELLIE
(reassuring)
No, let them help you. I'm sure they can get you medical help.

DISTRESSED MAN
No, you don't understand, they're going to take me.

ELLIE

What?

The distressed man grabs onto Ellie's pant leg not letting go.

DISTRESSED MAN

(more panicked)

I can't go with them. Don't let them get to me. Take me with you.
Do something. Please.

Ellie and Valerie look at each other confused and panicked. They don't know what to do.

The 2 figures get to the Distressed Man and stop. The Distressed Man quickly grabs ZEE'S CARD off the ground and shoves it towards Ellie.

DISTRESSED MAN (CONT'D)

Go to Zee. Tell him that I've been captured. He'll know what to do.

Ellie grabs the card from the Distressed Man. The 2 figures grab onto the Distressed Man. He tries to get free.

ELLIE

What's your name?
(to the figures)
Where are you taking him?

The figures don't respond. The Distressed Man goes unconscious and limp before he can respond.

ELLIE (CONT'D)

What did you just do to him?!

The figures don't respond again. Ellie's head starts to hurt again. Valerie's does too. (This is indicated by a buzzing noise). They both start to wince.

One of the figures takes a white remote out of their pocket. They push a few buttons, before pointing it at Ellie and Valerie. The buzzing gets louder and louder. Ellie is trying to shout something, but nothing comes out. The world fades to white.

INT. APARTMENT BUILDING - MORNING

Ellie's apartment is the same as we last saw it. The alarm clock goes off. We land on Ellie, who is in a disheveled state. However, she has no wounds or any marking that would indicate being handled or getting cut.

The only indication of anything different is her laying on top of the bed with the same outfit she was wearing the previous day.

Ellie reaches tiredly to turn off the alarm clock. She rubs her eyes groggily.

She gets out of bed and walks to the bathroom. She takes a look in the mirror. She sees that she is wearing the same outfit as last night.

ELLIE
(tiredly)
Huh?

We cut to the bedroom while we can hear a shower in the background. We hear the shower turn off and the door open. Ellie's outfit is tossed on the bed. ZEE'S CARD flutters out of the pocket and onto the ground. It is now stained with droplets of dried blood. Ellie comes into frame, now fully dressed. She looks down at the card and picks it up.

ELLIE (CONT'D)
How did this get on here?

Ellie tries wiping off the blood, but it still stains the card. She proceeds to put it into her pocket.

She then goes about her day in a one to one fashion to the previous day, copying the same story beats.

INT. OFFICE BUILDING - MORNING

Ellie enters the office building.

MRS. BERGAMOND
(happily)
Good morning Ellie!

ELLIE
Good morning Mrs. Bergamond.

Ellie enters into the elevator. Valerie dashes in right as the doors are closing.

VALERIE
Hey El! Last night was something, wasn't it?

ELLIE
Ya, it really was.

VALERIE

I don't even remember how I got home, I just remember leaving and then somehow I was just home. Must have been wild I guess.

ELLIE

I don't seem to remember either...

VALERIE

Wow, we must have been crazy if even you don't remember.

Valerie playfully shoves Ellie. Ellie awkwardly smiles.

VALERIE (CONT'D)

Huh, maybe Demetrius remembers.
It's not like him to get too wild.

Valerie and Ellie exit the elevator. They walk over to their table and sit down. Out of the corner of the screen, we see Demetrius looking around before spotting Ellie and Valerie. He quickly walks over to the table.

DEMETRIUS

(quickly)

Oh my god. I was so worried that you wouldn't be here. I tried to find someone but no one was out and when I got back to the alley you were gone but I didn't have time to look for you before midnight and I assumed you guys had just gone back so I went back but I couldn't fall asleep cause I was worried something had happened to you guys like that guy had taken you or worse.

ELLIE

What guy? What are you talking about?

DEMETRIUS

You know. The guy in the alley?
Holding his head and stuff?

VALERIE

(looking at Ellie then
Demetrius)

Ya, I have no idea what you are talking about.

Demetrius looks at the both of them confused. He then looks at his watch which reads 8:59.

DEMETRIUS

Well, I have to go. I guess we will talk over it at lunch?

He rushes into an adjacent room.

ELLIE

What was that all about?

VALERIE

I don't know. He must be remembering something about last night that we don't.

(Beat)

Orrrrrrr he had a crazy dream.

As the clock reads 9:00, Mr. Brekman walks out into the room. The room falls silent.

MR. BREKMAN

Another day, another lovely task for us to do. I'd like to congratulate Ellie as being our top performer yesterday.

There is a polite applause in the room. Ellie looks sheepish.

MR. BREKMAN (CONT'D)

I urge you all to follow in her footsteps today and try to beat her output. Your tasks shall be on your screen per usual.

The screen pops out of the table once again. Ellie and Valerie get started on the task assigned to them. We fade out of the scene.

INT. BREAK ROOM - AFTERNOON

We cut into the middle of the conversation between Ellie, Valerie, and Demetrius. They are all eating lunch.

DEMETRIUS

So you don't remember anything? The alleyway? The crazy man? Not even the walk home in general?

VALERIE

For the fifth time, no, none of it.

DEMETRIUS

That's so strange. I can't get it out of my mind, no matter how much I'm trying not to think of it. It's affecting my performance, which can not happen right now.

VALERIE

I don't know, you must've just had a bad dream after having too many drinks last night. I feel like El and I would have definitely remembered something as big as that.

They sit there in silence eating their lunch. Demetrius is deep in thought.

Demetrius suddenly perks up as if he has an idea.

DEMETRIUS

What about that card Ellie? The one that guy who talked to you at the bar gave you? I remember the crazy guy said that he knew him or something.

Ellie reaches into her pocket taking out ZEE'S CARD. She places it on the table.

ELLIE

Ya, I remember getting this. Are you sure that guy had anything to do with this?

Demetrius picks up the card from the table.

DEMETRIUS

It has to be. See how it has dried blood? None of us got hurt at the bar, and he was definitely bleeding.

Demetrius pushes it closer to Valerie and Ellie. They both look at it, taking note of what he is saying.

Demetrius starts to pace around the table. He gets quick odd glances from the other employees, but they pay him no attention.

DEMETRIUS (CONT'D)

This guy has to be the reason you all don't remember anything. What could he have done?

ELLIE

Demetrius, I think this is getting out of hand. We are fine and here now. And nothing happened. Let's just forget about it.

Demetrius is still pacing, deep in thought. He starts to pinch the bridge of his nose, clearly in discomfort.

VALERIE

Dee, are you okay? Don't let this bother you. We are all here and we can put it in the past.

He stops and sits back down. He picks ZEE'S CARD off of the table.

DEMETRIUS

All I know, is we have to talk to this Zee guy. But first we have to figure out where 301 is. I say we look for it tonight.

ELLIE

I don't know. Maybe we shouldn't go chasing after this guy if his so called friend was yelling in an alleyway with a shiv like you are claiming.

Demetrius looks at Valerie hoping that she is on his side. Valerie starts to think.

VALERIE

Hmm... she does have a point. But this Zee isn't that guy.

(shrugs)

And what's the worse that can happen?

Ellie looks at Demetrius, who is happier now that Valerie is on his side. She looks back at Valerie, who seems eager to go on another quest. She thinks for a second.

ELLIE

Fiiiiiiine. Let's do this.

END OF PILOT